I am writing at the request of Georgeann Herbert, Director of Digital Media, CBS Radio-Detroit and as a local partner and collaborator of WWJ Newsradio 950. ArtServe Michigan is an independent statewide Arts Advocacy organization located in Southeast Michigan. We have been collaborating with WWJ for over five years on Greatstufftodo.com, a regional web-based arts and cultural calendar and related e-newsletter. Together, the calendar and e-newsletter serve as a unique one-stop informational hub providing residents of Southeast Michigan with everything they need to know to take full advantage of the breadth and depth of cultural offerings available in this vibrant metropolitan area.

Through the process of partnering on this valuable service, we have witnessed WWJ going the extra mile by working with the local arts and cultural organizations, large and small, to guide them in taking full advantage of the promotional opportunities presented by GreatStuff. Our up close and personal experience and plain old-fashioned powers of observation have made it clear to us that this station has an extraordinary commitment to serving the public interest here in Southeast Michigan. Their coverage of local news, events, and issues is exemplary. Because of this commitment, ArtServe eagerly looks forward to future collaborations with WWJ Newsradio 950 that will benefit the residents of Southeast Michigan.

Sincerely,

Neeta Delaney
President & CEO
